

Introducing the Fortius Foundation

The Fortius Research and Education Foundation was awarded charity status by the Charity Commission in March 2017*.

The primary objective of the Foundation is to improve the diagnosis and treatment of orthopaedic and other related musculoskeletal disorders. These might vary from acute soft tissue sporting injuries to long term conditions such as arthritis and chronic pain syndromes.

The Foundation aims to achieve this by encouraging and supporting research and education in these fields.

Our Work

The Fortius Education and Research Foundation operates within England and Wales through sponsoring and supporting research and by making grants to other individuals and organisations to carry out research. It also funds Fellowships at Fortius Clinic which allows young surgeons, often from overseas, to carry out research and to observe and learn from the Fortius clinicians in order to gain specialist experience and knowledge.

There are no restrictions on the type of research we support, other than it being related to musculoskeletal conditions and treatments. It could include: laboratory -based studies, biomechanical investigations, the development and trials of different surgical techniques or evaluating different types of rehabilitation. Which projects to support are decided by the Trustees of the Foundation. If you would like more information about our work and our Trustees please visit www.charitycommission.gov.uk and search for Fortius Education and Research Foundation
